INTRODUCTION

Charity is the provision of assistance (free or on preferential terms) to those in need. The key feature of charity is the voluntary choice of the type, time, and place, as well as the content (targeted) of assistance. Philanthropy isn't just about giving back, it's about leaving a lasting legacy for generations to come. Charity is important because it fosters trust among strangers, promotes collaboration, and provides assistance in times of need, thereby contributing to the development of a civil society.

In modern times, people increasingly forget about moral values with each passing day. Selfishness and the satisfaction of individual needs come to the forefront. While a few decades ago, the charity was a common practice, it is now considered a peculiar and uncommon social phenomenon, practiced by saintly altruists or politicians before upcoming elections.

However, not everything is as bleak as one might think. Many members of modern society, regardless of age, social status, and religion, are well aware of what charity entails. Nevertheless, each person engaging in charitable acts has their own personal motives.

Psychologists have demonstrated that individuals involved in charity not only become altruistic but also: handle stressful situations better; are less susceptible to depression and irritability; feel much happier than those who do not help those in need; experience positive emotions more frequently; and are more successful in combating social phobia.

CHARITABLE DONATIONS IN CRYPTOCURRENCY

International experts suggest that charities can utilize smart contracts on the blockchain to ensure donations are allocated for their intended purposes and prevent misuse. Furthermore, blockchain technology helps eliminate intermediaries such as banks, reducing transaction costs, increasing efficiency, and making donations accessible to people in underbanked regions.

Web3 solutions can benefit the charity sector by providing transparency, efficiency, and accountability in fund utilization, as well as opening up new fundraising opportunities through the use of digital assets.

Crypto philanthropy offers global inclusivity, overcoming geographical constraints and democratising giving across borders. Powered by blockchain technology, cryptocurrencies ensure transparency via publicly logged transactions.

Yannick Naud, UNICEF Luxembourg's Innovative Finance Officer, highlighted that the blockchain economy can incentivize donors by rewarding them with tokens for voting on charity decisions or contributing to other causes. "Web3 and blockchain technology offer increased transparency, accountability, and traceability in the donation process, crucial for building trust with donors" (Yannick Naud, Binance Blog, May 2023).

Aiaze Mitha, UNDP's Global Lead in Digital Finance & SDGs, believes that Web3 and digital assets provide charities with new fundraising and donor engagement methods. For instance, charities can create their own tokens, which can be purchased or earned through tasks contributing to the charity's mission. These tokens could serve various purposes, such as voting on charity decisions, purchasing goods and services from the charity, or even trading them on cryptocurrency exchanges.

BITCOIN DONATIONS began as early as 2017 when an anonymous donor contributed 5,104 bitcoins to launch the Pineapple Fund. The fund distributed bitcoin donations to 60 charitable organizations, totaling over $55 million. Today, they are estimated to be worth over $200 million.

As of 2022, nearly all charitable organizations accept donations in bitcoins and other cryptocurrencies, with the number of charitable donations in this format continuing to grow.

CRYPTO PHILANTHROPY – THE FUTURE OF GIVING!

- ◆ The total amount of donations on The Giving Block in 2021 was $69,644,535, marking a 1558% increase from 2020. In 2022, crypto giving passed $125M all-time on The Giving Block.
- ◆ The average size of cryptocurrency donations on The Giving Block in 2022 was $26,000, reflecting a 236% increase from the previous year.

Receiving and sending international donations face challenges due to the lack of payment instruments within countries, high fees, potential fraud in charitable activities, and transaction speed. All these factors complicate issue resolution for charitable funds, significantly reducing donations and financial assistance to those in need. The BABYIRBIS project aims to address these problems. By combining charity, the crypto industry, and blockchain technologies, we get a convenient modern solution to problems.

BETWEEN PEOPLE AND THE ENDANGERED
SNOW LEOPARD

THE PROBLEM

Snow Leopards, often referred to as IRBIS, are facing a dire crisis, and it is the compassion and support of people that hold the key to their survival. A heartfelt portion of Snow Leopard Foundation's mission is dedicated to the revival of these magnificent creatures' habitats. This mission revolves around educating communities, taking a stand against heart-wrenching poaching practices, engaging residents in the noble cause of conservation, and providing them with the means to sustain their lives without hunting these magnificent creatures.

It is hard to oversell the grace and elegance of the Snow Leopard, the lord of the mountains. These remarkable beings inhabit the snow-clad heights throughout Asia, from the rugged terrain of Afghanistan to the mystic mountains of Mongolia and the vastness of the Altai. In most areas, in summer the leopards stay near alpine meadows along the snow border at an altitude of 3500-4000m, and in the Himalayas - up to 5500-6000m. In winter it follows ungulates down to 1800m, in the Jungar Alatau - up to 600m. Everywhere it chooses areas where small open plateaus and narrow valleys alternate with steep gorges and piles of rocks.

But our beloved Irbis faces an insidious enemy - illegal poaching driven by the promise of financial gain. This heartbreaking pursuit of the Snow Leopard's fur has tragically decimated their numbers. We believe in uniting the world's caring souls to make a significant difference. It's not just about saving a species; it's about safeguarding the soul of our planet.

Today, the plight of the Snow Leopards is nothing short of a crisis. According to the World Wildlife Fund, the total number of Snow Leopards within the entire global range is estimated to be between 3,500 and 7,500. A further 1,000 or so are kept in zoos worldwide.

We must come together to protect these enchanting creatures as their population is dwindling to a heartbreaking extent, leaving them teetering on the brink of extinction. Now, more than ever, we must open our hearts and wallets to rescue these majestic beings.

Join us in this noble endeavor, as we strive to ensure that future generations will still be able to marvel at the beauty and wonder of the Snow Leopard, our precious Irbis. Every contribution, no matter how small, is a beacon of hope for these remarkable creatures and a testament to the indomitable human spirit.

Together, we can turn the tide and secure a brighter future for the Snow Leopards.
